PROTESTERS started Earth Day on Sunday, with environmentalists in Pangasinan painting the faces of President Aquino and other officials on trees set to be cut for a road expansion.

In Pangasinan, the event was the celebration of a 622-kilometer caravan against mining on the island. The caravan passed by 46 towns and three cities—three towns in Aklan, 30 towns and a

Scarborough belongs to PH, old maps show

Documents back claim, says solon

By Michael Lim-Ulan

OLD MAPS dating back to Spanish colonial times may hold the key to the claim of the Philippines to Scarborough Shoal.

Known as "Isla Scarborough," the shoal now called Panatag in the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA), has been part of the known world since 1734, when European cartographers began to map the world in an age of conquest.

In fact, Isla Scarborough appeared on a map of the "Archipelago Filipino" as a constituent part of Sulu (Sulu Islands province) in a topographic map of the country drawn under the direction of

AFP: War games not directed at China

By Qi Yip

THE ARMED Forces of the Philippines yesterday dismissed Beijing's warning that military exercises between Filipino and US forces could lead to a confrontation with China.

On the 12th day of a standoff at Panatag Shoal, Maj. Brismar Garcia said China had no reason to feel concerned about the annual Balikatan (shoulder-to-shoulder) exercise that started a week ago.

The AFP's spokesperson for Balikatan said in a radio interview that the two-week event, which features naval drills and humanitarian activities, was not in any way related to the tension in an area known internationally as Scarborough

Pinoy soldiers amazed at modern US weapons

PORT MANGROVE, Palawan City—It was the first time in his six years as a soldier that Sgt. Samuel Uraguila had joined the Balikatan exercises—and the sight of new weapons and gadgets used by American soldiers amazed him.

One weapon that Uraguila said impressed him was the American M-249 rifle, with a powerful range of 750 meters, making it far superior to the Filipino M-16 rifle, which has a range of 300 meters.

Garguila gave his impression of the latest American weaponry after taking part in five-day exercises at a Special Forces kill zone on Sunday.

Comelec denies P-Noy request to register ARMM voters anew

By Joseph R. Uy

THE COMMISSION on Elections

(Comelec) has rejected President Benigno Aquino III's proposal of a general re-registration of voters in the five provinces that make up the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM), except in Maguindanao.

In an order with signatures, Comelec Chair Juan Brillantes Jr. said the commission decided to do an all-time sweeping last week to deny President Aquino's wish to cancel the existing voter list and conduct a new general registration as part of electoral reform in the ARMM.

There are at least 1.71 million registered voters in the region based on the 2010 barangay tallying.

"We did not allow it," said Brillantes, adding that they only agreed to clean the slate in Maguindanao because of an existing provision to nullify the voters list in the province.

Brillantes said it was a "vote-to-cure" tactic in the other provinces, where a petition for complete revision may be filed for a particular area where alleged irregularities happened.

Graft court to get more magistrates

THE DEPARTMENT of Justice (DOJ) has given its nod to a legislative measure that would increase the number of justices in the Sandiganbayan anti-graft court.

In a previous paper, Justice Secretary Leila de Lima agreed with Sen. Teodoro Guidote III, author of Senate Bill No. 1111, that the anti-graft court needed more justices to ensure the speedy resolution of graft cases.

However, de Lima said a study was needed to determine exactly how many additional judges would be needed.

Guidote has proposed a three-fold increase in the appointment of 30 more magistrates to the 14-member tribunal.

De Lima said the Senate must give the opinion of Sandiganbayan President Justice Francisco Villano and other justices of the anti-graft court to determine the appropriate number of new magistrates.

"While there is a need to increase the number of associate justices in the Sandiganbayan, a thorough study should be made to determine how many associate justices are still needed," he said.

He said a study should also be conducted to see how many Sandiganbayan divisions should be created for the Visayas and Mindanao.

But the justice secretary disagreed to a request in the bill which would allow the appointment of only one justice—instead of three—in each division and receive reelection.

Since the Sandiganbayan is a trial court, de Lima said the presence of three justices during hearings was necessary "to enable justices render the right decision." Marine Ramos

P-Noy gives 3 officers first stars

PRESIDENT Aquino has presented to one-star the band of the Presidential Security Group (PSG) and two others in the military officers, the Armed Forces of the Philippines command Sunday.

PSG commander Col. Mauro Obusan and Army Support Command deputy commander Col. Danilo Servando were promoted to brigadier general.

Capt. Manuel Nolasco Aliboncin, commander of the Dental Force of the Philippine Fleet, was promoted to colonel.

The AFP and DISC presented his one-star April 17. He became PSG commander after the beginning of President Aquino's term on June 28, 2010.

Obusan was also in the PSG during the term of the President's last member, former President Corason Aquino. He was previously commander of the AFP's assistance unit, the Joint Special Operations Group based in Camp Aguinaldo.

Servando's promotion took effect on April 20.

Servando is a former AFP spokesman and public affairs director to the Department of National Defense. He belongs to Philippine Military Academy Class 2000.

Obusan will get his star on April 24.

He is the former deputy commander of Dental Force Eastern Mindanao. He belongs to 1984 Class 92. — Jena G. Pineda-Rugos

Court sides with Chavez vs Firm

CHART

THE ORIGINAL TH of Cause of Motion has granted lowest French Chancery's bid to have a damage suit filed against him by the "Patriot" dismissed.

The Villages of Marseilles and Angers have offices in better houses as "The Firm," so named after a paper for John Graham to and others.

In granting motion to dismiss, Judge Eric M. Alameda of Superior Court charged the law firm with "rumormongering," saying the 30 affidavits it had filed against Chavez could have been brought as a collection of affidavits indicating that all the patients were supposedly acting hostile on behalf of the law firm.

Degrading

The court said in its earlier dated March 30 that the filing of multiple petitions "constitutes abuse of court process, which tends to degrade the administration of justice, waste time and money, and add to the congestion of the heavily burdened docket of the court."

The court pointed out that "The Firm" also failed to inform its contributors and publishers of the newspaper in which the supposed blasphemous article was published, as well as the newspaper, its circulation and editorial and radio networks which caused the broadcast of the substance interviews.

Disposition

The court has stated that the standard for civil actions against public officials is whether the defendant acted with malice. The court has also stated that the standard for civil actions against private individuals is whether the defendant acted with negligence. The court has also stated that the standard for civil actions against the government is whether the government acted with negligence.

The court also questioned the necessity of the law firm's supposed representative, who also testified the same claims.

SSS makes borrowing more fun

By Marshall W. Symington

THE MEXICAL Security Trust (MST) has increased from 10¢ to 15¢ per share since its IPO in 1997, while rising and holding interest rates across the board is an effort to adjust rate-sensitive positions and provide competitive offerings to investors.

Enrico de Quince Jr., president and CEO, said in a statement that under some rules on housing loans, small and nonprofits can lose out on $1 billion—double amount previously allowed.

The lowest guideline is eight 555 housing units; gains in current industry prices," De Quince said.

The larger payment to and fixed interest rates make XIB loans competitive lending facilities offered by other institutions such as banks.

Now, the 2000 client and premium level charted in red will rise by as much as 3 percentage points to help meet goals while income is distributed at affordable rates.

Based on the new schedule, a loan of $100,000 carries an interest of 4 percent, down from 5 percent.

Loans of more than $200,000 and up to 2% million cost 9 percent and this rate is no longer subject to review every five years.

In the previous loan schedule 500 members who borrowed an amount between $500,000 and $500,000 paid 13 percent interest, while those who borrowed more than $500,000 up to $1 million paid 10 percent interest.

In both cases, the interest rate could be changed every five years, depending on the history of payments.

Under the new schedule, the SEC is offering loans of more than $1 million and up to $1.5 million, and charging 10 percent interest.

For all new loans, "fixed to fixed" now means no change for 15 years, although individual loans can go as long as 20 years.

Locusts taken and by specimens
Filipino workers will have a maximum term of 15 years, while loans to fund apartment, dormitory or home repairs and improvement can go as long as 20 years.

Leave the learning development can extend up to five years, as with loans where borrowers are 60 years old at the million.² In Quito said, "Among those who will leave are members whose homes were damaged by natural calamities and families who want to expand or renovate their houses."³

Further, the IIL lowered its 14-percent interest rate to 11 percent for entrepreneurs and developers of subsidiaries, institutions and other entities, and associations.

Aquino vows gov't support for ailing electronics sector

AQUINO

By Benito R. Sin Cruz
Regular Feature

MANILA CITY—President Aquino on Friday backed the electronics industry for its contribution to the economy despite declining demand for its exports, and promised his administration's "active support" for the industry that has been severely affected by the global slowdown and the effects of the disaster that hit Japan last year.

"My government is determined to meet any challenge that might arise in your field with equal resolve and equal force. We will continue to count on my administration's active support for the semiconductor and electronics industry," Mr. Aquino said during a meeting with the Philippine Electronics Association (PEA) and the Philippine Semiconductor Association (PSA) at the PEA headquarters in the Philippines last Friday.

"The industry for the past two years of growth, we left behind the effects of the disaster that hit Japan, so top of a global economic downturn that spanned years," the President said, noting that the industry's exports dropped to a 19 percent share of the country's total exports in 2011 from an average share of 20 percent.

"This notwithstanding in the decline in total merchandise exports, which pulled down the 2011 GDP figure down to growth rate by an estimated 3.3 percentage points," Mr. Aquino said.

The Philippines provides about 20 percent of the world's semiconductor production using services with products that include mobile phone chips and microprocessors. It is also the site for the manufacture of other electronic products like the flat-panel display systems, CD-ROM drives, digital signal processing units, printed circuit boards and disk drives.

Despite the decline, the industry's direct employment grew by six percent, from 390,000 in 2010 to 500,000 in 2011, the President said, adding it was encouraging sign.

Mr. Aquino also credited the industry for its innovation, under standing and vision that helped the industry's expansion. "The sector has been able to thrive, and not merely survive, in the Philippines despite the limitations presented by the business environment, which cannot be equal to those of the global market," he said.

He said the sector that is export of the industry is achieving greater heights as it "builds on the momentum that the country is experiencing in the field."

Recently, industry leaders proposed tight programs for the sector.

Says that Bing Vero said the companies behind the movement in the first two months of the year showed an improvement.

He said the industry recorded $4.1 billion in investments in January and February 2011. But during the same period in 2012, investments reached $4.45 billion, an increase of about 7 percent.

Most of these investments came from the semiconductor industry.

Vero said the industry is expected to post a major increase in the next two to three months. Industry leaders said they expect revenues to increase by between 20 to 30 percent this year despite last year's drop of 20 percent.

Some 228 leaders of the electronics industry from several countries attended the last day 17th World Electronics Forum.

Ordinary folk to monitor desk deliveries to Mindanao schools

By David Quintanilla

ADDENDUM to ensure the delivery of new textbooks to schools in Mindanao in time for the next academic year, a civil society group will help keep an eye on the process, the Department of Education (DepEd) said on Friday.

The DepEd has promised to deliver the same volume in Mindanao schools in time for the next school year in June.

To ensure that the delivery will be done with the support of the Philippine Mindanao, which will help coordinate to monitor textbook deliveries by the DepEd and to coordinate with the schools in the region.

The DepEd said the program, introduced in Metro Manila in 2005, would be launched in schools on Samar Island, in Davao del Norte, Davao del Sur and Compostela Valley.

The program is intended to ensure that textbooks are delivered in time for the next school year in June.

DepEd said the program is intended to ensure that textbooks are delivered in time for the next school year in June.

Quintanilla said the program was initially launched with help from the Australian Agency for International Development.

"We are very pleased with the success provided by parents and civil society groups in ensuring that our schools will get their much-needed resources in good quality and on time," Education Secretary Armin Luistro said in a statement.

"This is a critical measure and one that we cannot do on our own as we continue to fill resource gaps in the public school system," Luistro added.

Under the program, barangay leaders will work with the DepEd in monitoring whether textbooks are delivered in time for the next school year.

"We are not just looking at the quantity and quality of the textbooks but also at the quality of the delivery," Luistro said.

Barangay leaders will visit at least 250 schools from the school year 2011-2012 for the monitoring effort.

"Even if I don't have money, I give my time in Barangay Village," Luistro said. "A long-term solution, well, it is a matter of time."

"The only way to ensure that textbooks are delivered in time for the next school year is to ensure that they are delivered in time for the next school year."

Malunggay, yacon cure for infection

LOCAL plants yacón and malunggay have been found to be effective remedies against common skin bacterial infections.

In a study conducted by the La Salle Health Science Institute (LSHI) and the Philippine Medical Research Institute (PMRI), researchers have confirmed the two plants' ability to suppress infection.

The study found that malunggay and yacón have been found to be effective against Staphylococcus aureus and Streptococcus pneumoniae, the most common causes of skin infections.

A group of researchers from LSHI, PMRI, and the National Research Institute of Science and Technology (NSTP) found that the compounds in malunggay and yacón possess significant activity against the bacteria and fungi that cause skin infections.

The study also found malunggay seeds to be effective against Staphylococcus aureus and Streptococcus pneumoniae, the most common causes of skin infections.

But every time he was such directly, he said, he felt he needed to turn them into something good.

Finally, one day in May last year, he picked up a piece of scrap metal and began to turn it into a work of art. Then he tried another piece. And then another item.

He mounted a series of exhibits, including an exhibit at the lobby of the Senate of the Philippines.

Then followed exhibits at shopping malls in Mandalay and in San Juan City in Puerto Rico and, next, in San Pedro City in market and the real movement of the CDS_{BIS} sculptures to art collections, including the most recent Lady Florida Maroon, Rep. Mary Joella Chipera of Laguna (2nd District) and Laguna Gov. Bill Richards.

Stallan said that he derived great joy from "turning something discarded and considered worthless into an artwork that is admired and appreciated." And he would not let the finished artwork show a trace of "respect for the metal and machine."

Plaque and Seroconversion

"The thread that runs like red wire through all my work is recycling," Miller says on his website, www.marmellati.com. In a photo he poses for running past his work of art.

Waller said he had received instructions to exhibit in America, Hong Kong, Australia and the United States.

Affiliates' enthusiastic responses to the trial had offered to sponsor and exhibit at Boston, Mallon said.

"I had to decline the offer because now because I didn't have enough money to pay to do certain services," Mallard said. "Maybe another would come," he added.

The alien married citizen on coffee lip as a student, not confident to help him move, he has shop in Australia. The confidence as a student of good value if he would return, he said.

It was a "big temptation," he said, but he declined, he said, because he wanted to be by developing his craft there instead of traveling in country. He asked the musician, however, to send him letters to his wife.

Madhat said he preferred to promote his artwork here to help raise public awareness of "hidden treasures" among the subjects that litter the environment.

Storyboard characters

The assignments are characters whose names could have been lifted from movie books, such as Gipsy, Baby Gipsy, Kamille head, Strawn (Yare) and Offbeat. Among them are small-scale versions of battle tanks, helicopter prototypes, a crane inspired by the 1976 movie "Conan the Barbarian," a motorcycle named Easy Rider inspired by the eponymous movie, and another motor cycle named by a 1961 Shirley

There are also representations of symbolic elements, including a mammoth skeleton, a bearded man and a dragon, with various details that show how wryp material was "repackaged," as Mallon described it. A tiger will be integrated in how Willard's role in the track of his elephant from the head of a mammoth.

At the time, Mullan said the helicopter gunning required at least 75 kilograms of scrap metal, which he collected and stored in his shop. He completed the piece using additional metal he bought from junk shops.

Support for caregivers

Madison's exhibit, "World Cancer, the Art of Moral Recycling," runs from April 30 to 22 at 500 City Square Plaza. In a speech at the opening of the exhibit, Madison declared his opponents' impulse ethics wrong like him to be creative for the sake of the victims.

He also declared his readiness to support environmental campaigns. "It is, for me, a great deal of honor to be part of efforts to protect nature," he said.

MMDA reviews need for U-turn slots

By Mike Morales

THE METROPOLITAN Manila Development Authority will hold consultations with people in a community where U-turn slots are situated before these are either shut down or relocated, according to MMDA Chair Francis Tolentino.

In an interview last week, while reviewing the effect of U-turn slots, Tolentino said that the agency does not have a traffic scheme implemented years ago by former MMDA Chair Rogelio Sarmiento—and evaluating whether these were still necessary under the current traffic conditions.

He explained that the U-turn slots were created because there was need for them then although these were not meant to be permanent.

Today, Tolentino will be meeting with representatives of Sanville Subdivision and nearby communities, as well as officials of Metro College and Ateneo de Manila University on the last of the U-turn slots on Sanville Avenue in Quezon City.

The consultation is part of the work of the MMDA Metro Traffic Watch Program whose intention of addressed and be given only on traffic schemes on the implemented in their areas, he said.

Of the 177 U-turn slots around Metro Manila, at least six will immediately be removed, including the ones in front of Quezon Institute in Quezon City and on Marikina Highway, Tolentino said.

As for the majority, these will undergo a five-step evaluation process under the Metro Traffic Watch Program, he added.

First, the MMDA will conduct the study in a given area using its software before conducting a field observation. Afterward, the agency will engage the community in a dialogue during which, hopefully, a solution will be

Tams, Tigers aim for 1st victories in Filoil Cup

By Cedric F. Nolasco

MANILA—The University and University of the East Tams and Tigers have set their sights on their first victories in the Filoil Flying V Asian Premier Basketball Cup.

The Tams, using a heavy defense in the first half, go up against UPRV at 7:30 p.m. after the Tigers' game with the UPRV at 7:00 p.m. in the Filoil Flying V Asian in the first half.

Manila makes its debut in the tournament at 7:30 p.m. against a University of the East team looking to bounce back from a loss to Letham last Friday in the tournament presented by Super National and Filoil Sports.

The Cardinals will match a formidable team led by high-scoring wingman Aron Reyes and Jayson Magsaysay and Mike Reyes. The Panthers hope to bounce back to win a game and to win the Letham last Friday in the tournament.

Both the Tams and the Tigers are coming off losses. The Tigers, which finished second in the tournament last two years in the UAAP, finished second in the UAAP.

Former UAAP Most Valuable Player Benjie Tugue is in the lineup for the Tigers, who are looking to bounce back from a loss to Letham last Friday in the tournament.

The Tigers won't be in the tournament until the UAAP. The Tigers are looking to bounce back from a loss to Letham last Friday in the tournament.

Djokovic seeks 8th win vs Nadal

MANILA—Serbian tennis champion Novak Djokovic will try to win his eighth straight match against Rafael Nadal in the final of the ATP World Tour Finals in London.

Nadal advanced to the final with a 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 win over Djokovic in the semifinals. Djokovic, who is looking to win his eighth straight match, will face Nadal in the final.

"It's the last year in history of the sport on this surface. It's an amazing challenge," Djokovic said. "I cannot have any and one. I cannot afford that against Nadal."

who not believe that I can win."

Djokovic has beaten the Spaniard in seven consecutive matches, including the 2011 Australian Open, and finished his only two ATP titles last year.

"I have everything to win. That's the only positive thing about being here," Djokovic said. "I'm not nervous. I'm not nervous. I'm not nervous."

With the Monte Carlo crown, Djokovic will have won his eighth straight match against Nadal.

Bulls, Sixers thwart rivals

Chicago pads Eastern lead

CHICAGO—The Chicago Bulls held off a fourth-quarter rally by the Dallas Mavericks, 95-88, on Friday and moved their lead in the NBA Eastern Conference to 3-1/2 games.

Last Doug Scott 20 points and Richard Hamilton added 19 for the Bulls, who have won games led in the regular season—against Indiana and New York Knicks—and scored in the fourth quarter.

Defending NBA champion Dallas, which has already secured a playoff berth, scored seven points in the fourth quarter.

In Indianapolis, Philadelphia edged out a clutching playoff spot by beating Indiana, 105-95, in overtime, ending the Pacers' seven-game winning streak.

Marko Matic scored 20 points and Lou Williams added 19 for the Pacers, who were the only one of their remaining three games to lose. Williams lost one in order to clinch a playoff berth.

Danilo Gallinari had a season-high 22 points and grabbed 13 rebounds for Indiana, which finished its season on a high note in the Eastern Conference.

In Salt Lake City, Utah edged its rival in the West playoff spot in the Western Conference by beating Golden State, 117-107, in overtime.

The Jazz moved a game ahead of Phoenix for the eighth and final spot, but the two teams met on Friday night in the West semifinals.

Devin Harris scored 21 points and had a key block that forced overtime, with the Jazz holding the lead in a 14-point deficit in the fourth.

The Jazz dropped their first game since All-Star season Dwight Howard's back surgery, which will keep him out for the season.

Andrew Bynum led Orlando with 23 points, including three 3-pointers.

In Phoenix, Denver advanced a playoff berth by defeating Phoenix, 128-117. Lamarie scored 20 points and had 10 rebounds and 10 assists for the Nuggets.

Bank rates drop but BSP wants deeper cuts

With key interests set low, banking sector urged to follow suit

BANK LENDING rates may have dropped by an average of 25.5 basis points since the start of the year, but the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas still wants the banking sector to offer even cheaper loans.

However, the BSP has cut its key policy rates by a total of 90 basis points this year, necessary so that the rapid loan delinquencies to be reduced by its monetary expansion to that of the government as the latter's impact on the economy will be minimal.

The BSP's monetary policy is meant to influence commercial interest rates being charged to borrowers.

Oliver Guevarra said, adding that banks are expected to follow suit with the cut in rates.

The interest of the BSP's monetary policy is January and is likely to be more so because demand for bank loans which, in turn, could spur consumption and investments.

Monetary officials said, however, which gave by a 25.5 basis points last year, should this further to accelerate growth of the economy.

The economy, measured in terms of gross domestic product, grew by 3.7 percent last year, slowing down from the 7.5 percent registered in 2010. Most recent savings due to declining demand from creditworthy customers in Europe contributed much to the slowdown.

With bank lending expected to grow further, domestic spending may increase and offset the ill effects of sluggish exports on the economy's growth.

Lower lending rates from the BSP showed that outstanding loans of commercial and consumer banks grew by 18 percent to P2.74 trillion in February from the P2.34 trillion reported in the same period last year.

According to the BSP, banks need to maintain robust growth in

Stocks seen to give out gains this week

STOCKS ARE expected to give out gains this week as many investors remain bullish on the market to go up. The main reason is the strong performance of the Philippine Stock Exchange index last week, which gained 1.7 percent to 1,194.48.

With a new intra-day high of 1,275, "I think there's a lot more room for the market to go up. I'm bullish on the market," said Joseph Reyes, president of E*TRADE.

PH dealers urged to gear up for 'borderless' trade

Local banks 'in the pink of health,' says PDS

By Rita T. Okonkwa

THE PHILIPPINE capital market must prepare for a 'borderless' trade and learn to deal with bank loans that Western banks have left unattended, according to Philippine Banking System Holdings Corp. (PDS).

The Philippine banking system is 'in the pink of health,' said president and CEO Vicente B. Castillo. 'It is well placed to fill in the gaps that non-bank European banks induced capability toward.'

Currently, the best way for the capital markets of different countries to interact is through banks that agree on common rules and standards, Castillo added.

The Bangkok-based Philippine and the Securities and Exchange Commission are setting a blueprint for cross-regional trade, he said. For this, the Philippines needs new talent. It has to have an aligned regulatory framework while it strengthens its domestic regime.

Aids from having the capability to support international trading, the Philippine market is also growing in terms of maturity and capacity to participate in regional trade as local investors grow more appreciation of their home products, Castillo said.

The PDS executive explained that individual and institutional investors now comprise 35 percent of local activity.

PDS' target is to improve this to 50 percent 'by June or July,' he said.

The Philippine Banking System Holdings Corp. is the mother company of the Philippine Banking Exchange Corp. (PBEX), which sponsors the Bond Income Exchange.

Private firms began listing with PBEX in August 2008, with Ayala Corp. and Ayala Land Inc. leading the way with P16 billion worth of corporate notes.

Moving forward, he said, he sees more companies tapping the local debt market and more individual and institutional investors taking up available products.

There had also been talk on the possible union of the Philippine Stock Exchange (PSE) and Philippine Banking and Exchange Corp. (PBEX).

The latests market reported that PSE and PDS leaders have started discussions on whether this—as it has been discussed—would be a reality, and which security got a push from regulators.

Such a move is expected to give local companies more credit when fundraising, whether through equities or bonds, and make it easier for local investors to deal with a single entity for their securities needs.

This is seen to make the Philippine market more globally competitive, stakeholders said.

In 2011, the PSE group reported P26.1 billion in net revenue and P14.5 billion in net income.

PNOC EC plans to invest P20B in new prospects

By Amy R. Nune

State-run company firming up coal, power projects

PNOC Exploration Corp. (PEC) has approved and awarded state-owned Philippine National Oil Co. is investing a hefty P20 billion between now and 2016 for the "further exploration, evaluation, development and marketing of oil, gas and coal deposits in the Philippines."

The company's board of directors had approved this "long range" plan, which also includes the construction of power plants in tandem with the country's electricity supply and PNOC EC chair and CEO Guillermo Lopez Jr. PNOC EC market and it had begun looking for potential coal reserves pertinent to the construction of new coal-fired power plants, which will be put up in Isabela and Sandiganay, Ilocos, where its coal mines are located.

PNOC EC is also developing three new prospects, high-grade coal mines within Zamboanga Sibuyan under Coal Operating Contract No. 41. These mines could increase the company's coal production by some 600,000 metric tons annually. As present, production within COC-41 is around 150,000 metric tons a year.

The company also initiated several bids to acquire contracts to explore and develop some of the prospective coal mines in the country, under the Philippine Energy Governance Fund 4 for coal.

For its upstream oil business, PNOC EC is looking to drill an exploration well within Service Contract 10 off Batangas, where two big prospects had been identified: the Bakoan discovery and the Bakoan site, which were estimated to hold 223 million barrels and 235 million barrels of oil, respectively.

PNOC EC has also recently taken over the compressed natural gas (CNG) refilling facility of Shell, as the government intends to limit the use of this alternative fuel for transport via the National Gas for Vehicle Programs the Public Transport (DOST-PTC) of the Department of Energy.

PNOC EC has appropriated P400 million for the project designed to provide compressed natural gas fuel to 1,000 passenger buses in the Department of Transportation.

Last year, PNOC EC posted a 22 percent growth in its net income to P2.51 billion from P2.46 billion the previous year. Consequently, the earnings per share rose to P7.31 from P7.22 in 2013. It also reported a 14 percent hike in gross revenues to P16.0 billion in 2013, from P14.43 billion a year ago.

Ethanol firm revives expansion plans

SAF CARLOS-Bioenergy, Inc. (SCBI), which built the first integrated ethanol facility in Southeast Asia, is finally pushing through with delayed plans to ramp up its yearly production of ethanol to more than 40 million liters from the current 30 million liters.

In an interview with inquirer, SCBI Chief Jose Maria T. Zalameda said the company expects to complete the expansion of the ethanol facility in San Carlos City, Negros Occidental, by June 2014.

By then, the facility is expected to produce at least 120,000 liters of ethanol a day for about 18 to 21 months to a year, from the current daily production of only 70,000 liters.

"Hopefully we can produce more," said Zalameda.

SCBI planned to start as early as 2009 to increase the capacity of its ethanol plant, but plans were put on hold due to problems plaguing the industry, such as the lack of a government policy on bio-production of ethanol.

Plans have since been revised following recent developments, particularly the imposition of Ecogry's treatment of a much-awaited resolution that contained provisions to ensure that local ethanol will be produced first before importing to strengthen self-reliance abroad.

It likewise stated the obligations of the market players, including bioethanol producers, of companies, the National Bioethanol Board, and the 2013 Renewable Energy Management and Oil Industry Management Council.

The resolution also directed the NBB to "establish a monthly price index for bioethanol every first day of the month based on data from the Price Regulatory Administration and Department of Agriculture to determine the reasonableness of the price of locally produced bioethanol."

SCBI currently supplies ethanol to Denisse Corp. and also sells electricity to the power grid, Amy R. Nune

BPI takes steps toward early adoption of Basel 3 standards

By Davis C. Denison

GLOBALLE Bank of the Philippines is taking steps toward the early adoption of stringent capital adequacy ratio (CAR) requirements under the Basel 3 global framework, according to BPI chief Antonio Zubelli Jr.

"From what we strong capital base, we have taken the first steps to consider the early adoption of Basel 3 rules as announced by the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, another step to strengthen our overall capital adequacy under the new global standards," said Zubelli in a report to stockholders last week.

Universal and commercial banks are required by the BSP to adopt by Jan. 1, 2014, the capital adequacy standards under Basel 3, which involves a complex package of reforms designed to improve the ability of banks to absorb losses, control the coverage of financial risks and have stronger liquidity periods of time.

Based on the BSP's proposed under Basel 3, the minimum CAR must be raised from from 12.5 percent

"We submitted our Baseline Capital Adequacy Assessment (BCAA) document to the BSP to do the gap and an internal minimum capital adequacy ratio of 18.25 percent was defined to include risks other than credit, market and operational risks," Zubelli said.

To management action trigger (MAT) of 11 percent, 100 basis points over the required minimum, was set to prompt the bank to take the proper action to adjust excess or adequate level of capital," he said.

"In fact, BPI has a CAR of about 15 percent. Considering only the Tier 1 on core capital, the ratio was 15.1 percent.

Based on the BCAA, BPI president Antonio Zubelli Jr. said the bank was projecting a 12 percent increase in lending in the next three years, which means that additional capital would be needed to meet 2015.

"The plan was to put it in by making good profits. If we do not do that, capital without going to the market," Zubelli said.

Oil prices climb on German confidence, US earnings

Worries of weak demand for crude take back seat

NEW YORK—Encouraging news about business confidence in Germany helped drive oil prices higher Friday. It was a reprieve from persistent worries about weaker energy demand in Europe, the main oil importer in the area.

Benchmark 35 crude rose 76 cents to finish at $103.63 per barrel in New York, while Brent crude added 75 cents to end at $113.76 in London.

In Germany, the biggest economy in the European Union, a key survey found that business confidence improved in April from March, the sixth straight month it rose. The survey showed confidence was up not only for current conditions, but for the next six months as well.

Oil prices also rose despite US stock markets' small gains, as worries about demand from major corporations, the Chinese, helped offset gains. The Dow Jones Industrial Average was up about 1 percent in afternoon trading. The S&P 500 and the Nasdaq were higher as well.

Benchmark oil has moved in a range between $100 and $105 per barrel this month as investors assessed global economic growth and looked for hints about the standoff between Iran and Western countries over Iran's nuclear program. They're also concerned about Iran's potential role in a new deal in the Chinese economy.

Talk between Iran and the West are scheduled to resume next month. The US, Europe and other countries think Iran may be working on a nuclear weapon, but Iran denied the charge.

Iran exports more than 2 million barrels of oil each day. The European Union and the US have imposed sanctions that make it tougher for Iran to sell its oil. In response, Iran stopped selling oil to Britain, France, Germany and Japan, although these countries weren't getting much Iranian oil to begin with.

Iran's oil minister said his country might see offers from European countries if the 25-nation fuel ban is eased some flexibility toward its country ahead of May's meetings.

In other trading, heating oil rose a nickel more than 1 cent to trade at $2.14 per gallon, gasoline futures climbed a cent to end at $2.14 per gallon and natural gas rose 1 cent to finish at $1.81 per 1,000 cubic feet.

IMF raises $430 billion for crisis firewall

WASHINGTON—Members of the International Monetary Fund will discuss loan arrangements Thursday after the IMF raised $430 billion to strengthen its crisis-response, with China and other emerging economic powers joining.

After weeks of working plans for the "global fire wall," the fund said Friday the BRICS group—China, Russia, India, Brazil and South Africa—had helped put it over to gold.

The fund announced that some 140 of $430 billion. That almost doubles the lending capacity of the fund. IMF managing director Christine Lagarde said after meetings of the IMF and the finance chiefs of the Group of 20 economic powers.

The figure "signals the strong resolve of the international community to secure global financial stability and put the world economic recovery on a sound footing," the IMF said in a handful of minutes since the announcement came to the $430 billion at the end, though specific amounts were not revealed.

That came on top of $200 billion provided by the euro zone, $60 billion from Japan, and $20 billion each from Britain, South Korea and South Africa over the past 12 months.

Lagarde expects that the fund's resources, other international governments and Singapore will not be used.

"We all agreed it was absolutely essential to have the fire wall put up at this time," said Thomas Hoenes, chairman of the IMF's policy-making body.

But, he added, "The fire wall is a necessary but by no means sufficient condition in meeting the crisis."

EU parliament slams Argentina's YPF seizure

Spain takes first retaliatory measure against Latin American trading partner

BRUSSELS—The European Union parliament on Friday condemned Argentina's move to seize control of the YPF division of Spanish oil and gas company Repsol and threatened that the EU take action against Buenos Aires in the World Trade Organization.

The parliament also called on the U.S. to look at the "possible partial suspension of the United States' preferences" as a way of punishing any country that attempts to nationalize a European company's assets.

Argentine says it is making the move—which would take control of 53 per cent of YPF, leaving Repsol with a 45 percent stake. Argentine Repsol has not invested enough in the country's industry.

Support in Argentina for seizing the formerly state-owned YPF falls to deep that even former President Carlos Menem says he is in favor of its expropriation. Repsol, however, says it is a serious, and he will vote for the re-nationalization next week, even though he knows many will continue to see president from 1999-2003, Menem said. He says Repsol took all its profits out of the country and failed to invest anything in Argentina.

Repsol, 50% SA and Spain have slammed Argentina's re-nationalization of YPF as an act of "pillaging" and an attack on their interests. The company's chief executive, Antonio Arce, said Repsol's shareholders own 53% of the company, and he said Repsol's stake at $10.5 billion.

Argentine Planning Minister Julio de Vido, meanwhile, met Friday with Brazilian officials about the move, and said he expects that his country would like Brazil to increase its Argentine market share from 8 percent to 15 percent. He also said that some of Brazil's state-run oil plants, however, would not be expropriated.

Brazilian Energy Minister Edison Lobato said that Petrobras received $200 million in Argentine last year, and planned to leave an equal amount this year because "it is good business" for the company.

The European parliament called the re-nationalization "an attack on the exercise of free enterprise and the principle of legal ownership" which has Argentina's investment climate.

The resolution, backed by the major parties in the Strasbourg-based legislature, also calls on European Commission to take up the issue at the WTO and the G-20 and explore measures to better protect EU companies in future.

Spain also took its first retaliatory step Friday announcing it would approve a measure promoting domestic livestock production, thereby reducing imported inputs from Argentina.

Export Prices Minister Susana Ruiz de Haza said that the government will take retaliatory measures more under consideration on how to deal with such challenges.

Last year Spain imported 7.8 million euros worth of Argentine livestock that was used as agricultural feed, the Industry Minister said Friday.

The Group of 20 industrial powers has a meeting in Mexico on June 18 that could bring down the President Cristina Fernandez and Spanish Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy together here to deal for the first time. AP

China high court spares tycoon's life in loan case

BEIJING—China's supreme court on Friday rejected the death sentence of an entrepreneur who was convicted of illegally raising money for his business in a case that prompted a public outcry.

The Supreme People's Court said it was rejecting 12-year-old Wu Yongchun for raising money to help his business in a case that prompted a public outcry.

"I feel relieved after I saw my daughter Wu Yongchun's sentence has not been approved," Wu's father, Wu Yongchun, wrote on the Weibo microblog site. "She is still alive and healthy. I hope she can find a good job and I hope she can live a happy life."

The official Xinhua news agency reported Friday that the Supreme Court—deciding that the defendant had raised money to help his business in a case that prompted a public outcry—rejected the death sentence "for his business in a case that prompted a public outcry."

The case has prompted debate over the financial difficulties Chinese entrepreneurs face in raising money to start businesses when the state-owned banking system channels most lending to state companies.

The commercial government has launched a pilot project in Wuxi to allow private companies, aimed at making it easier for entrepreneurs to get bank loans.

In March, Premier Wen Jiabao told reporters that the case shows that the development of private lending has not kept up with the economic and social needs of China.

THICK HAIR IS NOT AN ASSURANCE THAT YOU WON'T GO BALD.

The pitch, "you don't know what you've got until it's gone" is true, especially when it comes to hair. 90% of men suffer from hair loss. If you think your hair is going to stay full and thick for good, it won't. It's basically normal for men to lose hair. The secret is male hormone testosterone and its interaction with dihydrotestosterone, or DHT," says Michael Svenson, Svenson's Chief Technologist. For Svenson, prevention is key. "If hair loss is in your genes, don't wait until you go bald. See an expert while you still have your hair and use certain treatments to ensure you retain a good 'nest of hair'."

As early as now, prevent your hair from thinning and falling out. Svenson's Hair Retention Program rejuvenates the scalp for a healthier environment for growth, stops hair fall and helps maintain hair's thickness, lustrous and softness.

UK twin brothers charged in stock-robot swindle

Some 75,000 US investors duped by scam

NEWINGTON, CT — Investors thought they were buying shares in a stock-picking robot named "Max". Instead, they paid millions to coverage two brothers to duped investors here-and-there charges for an alleged penny-stock swindle.

The robot didn't exist. The stocks picked were companies they paid hefty fees to Alexander and Thomas Hansen, just 30 when the alleged scheme began in 2007, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) said Friday. As stock prices jumped, the Hansen's clients dumped their shares for a profit.

"While making their supposed breakthrough investment technology on two websites, the Hansens were raking up fees as stock prices rose through a link," said Thomas Swanson, chief of the SEC's office of market intelligence, in a statement.

The SEC filed a civil suit against the Hansens, who are now 33, in US District Court in Manhattan Friday.

Officials are asking the court to block the return from the securities industry and order them to return the money they collected from investors. They are also seeking civil financial penalties.

It all began with a website called daytradingrobot.com, according to a narrative described out by the SEC.

The Hansens drew roughly 75,000 investors, who were promised stock tips generated by a sophisticated program. The investors, most of them in the United States, paid at least $1.2 million for membership revealing the robot's signals and a "home version" of the robot software.

"The larger Max is allowed to run on a computer... The More Advanced He Becomes" one of the Hansen's websites claimed, according to the SEC complaint. The "Max" "home version" cost an additional $30. For that, investors got a program that grabbed ticker symbols fed by the Hansen.

The robot collected an additional $1.9 million from companies seeking Max's endorsement, the SEC said. On the site, equipment was shown. Thomas Hansen wrote that his website attracted thousands of visitors each day, many of whom followed his investing recommendations.

"Give a call to this list of people who have a stock price," the website said, according to the SEC complaint.

In 2008, after they presented a media publishing company called DOBB Media Inc., the Hansens promised to do more. DOBB Media Inc. was founded in 2000. DOBB Media Inc. stock on $1.08. DOBB Media Inc. was traded above a penny stock September 2007.

Disney studio chief quits after 'John Carter' bomb

LOS ANGELES — Disney senior studio chief John Rice stepped down on Friday, asking the fall for at least a couple of once budgeted bonds in Hollywood after away from taking ride on his last hours.

The resignation comes after two years in a row of costly blockbusters, mostly both having to do with the Fall Planet. Last year it was "Star Wars: The Force Awakens," a cheap animated movie that lost $70 million. This year, it was "John Carter," a sci-fi action movie that lost $150 million in the box office.

Disney, 50, said he is excited to still have his last day in the studio and to be a part of the 100th anniversary of Walt Disney Studios. "It's a great honor and a great responsibility," he said. "I'm excited to be a part of this journey and to see the studio's future." The move was not surprising to analysts, coming a few months after the studio's marketing chief MT Carter also departed because of a string of box office releases.

FOREIGN police officers now used as an archaeological office shows the ruins of Lumbini, birthplace of the Lord Buddha.

O IN MY FIRST night in Lumbini, I woke up before dawn to the morning sun. Deep breaths of fresh air from the Tibetan monastery down the road, calling monks to early morning meditation.

Following soon after came the distant sound of a single drum, becoming louder as it approached my window, until I saw a solitary monk in yellow robes leading his flock, pacific-shaped drum in his hands, walking with his measured steps.

I met a traveling monk on a previous trip here who told me his next mission was to give up a permanent home in exchange of something the world no longer, leaving their drums while walking in search of enlightenment.

Despite the sound of jacks planting the early morning silence, the stillness of Lumbini makes some pilgrims feel that enlightenment could be within reach. However, in the village outside the shrine, the local community has different priorities as it struggles to survive from day to day.

Lumbini is a place between two worlds, of Buddhism secretly standing with the poverty of everyday life in this dust-covered corner in rural Nepal, where there are only two small general stores, one restaurant, and an irregular bus that picks up passengers for Bhairahawa, the nearest town half an hour away where all supplies come from.

In Nepal, "power sharing" means less than six hours without power each day. Our office ground had not yet been delivered, as we waited in vain, without its light, support each other our living quarters changed, and reconstructed with the same.

SAGADA, A pine-clad town in Mountain Province, is known for its stately houses and places of cultural interest. It boasts of deep-covered mountains, magnificent views, graceful rice terraces and dramatic falls for adventure tourists to explore.

The dominant denomination religion in Sagada is the Episcopalian Anglican. Church music they were the first musicians to who arrived in the area circa 1907.

The Catholic mission of the Province of Ilocos Agaña is still confined to the far-flung hamlets of Kibang, which is 20 kms. away from the town center. The cathedral only said there is no Catholic church in the town proper for Catholic music recreation aimed masses.

"In our desire to expand the Catholic presence in Sagada, we are sure to encourage the construction of a chapel that will promote devotion to Our Lady of Mount Carmel and at the same time serve as the new center of our mission in the place," said Fr. Raulito E. Aquino, mission head. "The shrine will also provide devotional formation for the Catholic masses who are looking for a church nearby where they can pray or celebrate the Eucharist."

In order to augment the limited resources for this project, the Cebu Sanjose Rectorate of the University of Santo Tomas is helping the vicarage in organizing a fundraising concert in UST chapel this coming May 12.

The sacred choir of Cebu Sanjose and Cagayan State University Ensemble under the baton of Fr. Raulito E. Aquino together with UST Symphony Orchestra will entertain the audience with their rendition of classical repertoire.

The concert "Sagada in the Heart: A Night of Music and Love..." aims to raise the awareness and generosity of the faithful in supporting the Vicarage in achieving the dream of constructing a Catholic church in such beautiful town. Tickets and sponsorship form for the concert is available in the parish office of UST Chapel.

To support the construction of the church, and Fr. Raulito E. Aquino at 0929-4100-16, or 0929-4100-16. Donations may also be deposited in PNB Business Branch account number 140-12-01-000-13 (current name: Province of Ilocos Agaña).

National Book Development Trust Fund grantees bared

THE NATIONAL Book Development Trust (NBDB) has announced the grant recipients of this year's National Book Development Trust Fund. Grantees are: Traditional Medicine in Colonial Philippines by Ma. Theresa E. Collantes, for environment and biodiversity; Traditional Medicine in Colonial Philippines by Ma. Theresa E. Collantes, for health and wellness; and "The Steps of Pure Pillar" by Antonio B. Tugue for the novel.

Each received a P200,000 grant.

Twenty-four applications for book writing grants were received by the NBDB. It accepted proposals for the novel, study for environment and biodiversity, and book for health and wellness.

The awarding ceremony was held on April 22 at the Plaza Garden, Quezon Memorial Circle, Elipsal Road, Quezon City.

The NBDB is now accepting applications for grant for 2013 to the following topics: 1) Health Rehabilitation and Social Impact, 2) Novel or book-length literary work originally written in Filipino and 3) Environment and biodiversity of interrelated knowledge.

You can download the application form, with the rules and regulations for the grant at www.nbdb.gov.ph. Deadline of submission application is on Aug. 30.

The National Book Development Trust Fund was established exclusively for the support and promotion of Filipino authorship and the composition of novels/stories or research works for publication, especially in science and technology and in subject areas where locally authored books are in short supply or nonexistent.

And the bands play on Bands serve as a potent laboratory for composing and conducting. Antonino Buenaventura, Felipe de Leon Sr., and Lucio San Pedro, Hilarion Rabin, Alfredo Buenaventura, Francisco Pelliciano all have their roots in band music.

By Antonio C. Nilsen

THE CULTURAL Center of the Philippines was the venue of a band festival held April 13-14. Bands from Metro Manila and adjacent cities and towns, and from Baguio City as well as Ibadan in Mindanao, participated. The representation was wide as the bands came from different sectors such as schools, communities, the military services.

The Philanthropic Association headed by professor Horstheggele G. Narvon spearheaded the event that the OCF through the efforts of its president, first Senior, members organized.

The festival included a daylong workshop and band clinic, facilitated by bassist Toshiyuki, one of Japan's young composers who had scored outstanding band music compositions. He was joined by Stephen Fan of Toronto, Canada, who not only performs but also designs and builds modern clarinet and repurposes historical woodwinds.

In a message, Eusebio underscored the significance of the festival in promoting and appreciating local music, and elevating its quality to the highest standard for Philippine bands to acquire global recognition.

Listening to loud music is a favorite pastime in the country, so several bands produce all new. This glorious tradition has been a boost in cultivating the talent of Filipino musicians, as many of the country's leading composers and conductors were at one time or another exposed to this pastime, he goes.

Vina Morales ready for love again

Actress stays mum on a new man in her life but talks about playing a stripper onstage

By Harold R. Cruz
 and the Entertainment staff

THREE years after she broke up with the father of her child, singer-actress Vina Morales is ready for love again.

Although she has remained friends with former partner Gabe Lee for the sake of their daughter, Vina, she is a new state in her life.

But Vina was rightfully proud of his identity during a recent visit to the actress's home in Makati City. "I still have to figure out where this is best," she said candidly.

She admitted that she had learned a lot from her time with Gabe. "I used to be a girl who I was not, but now I am a girl who I am," she said. "I used to be a girl who I was not, but now I am a girl who I am." She said that she had learned a lot from her time with Gabe. "I used to be a girl who I was not, but now I am a girl who I am."

"Maui has had a hard time with all the controversies surrounding them," she said. "I see how they're really trying to work things out now. At 31, Maui is more mature than I was at that age. She also has the family full support."

During the busy time that Vina spent, she ended the war about her latest project, the local production of the musical "Stock of Ages." The musical production presentation runs from June 2 to July 5 at the Cebu City Convention Center.

Did you audit her for "Stock of Ages?"

I had to. I've been working in this business for years, but musical theater never entered my mind until I got an invitation from Adriano to audit.

THE MAMA lovely face of Vina Morales. She tells us, "I don't want to be ending with this man, it will happen."

time for an actor production, I think most of that was. Then came an e-mail invitation to audition for "Stock of Ages." This time I was.

I came prepared and sang two songs, one of which was "High School." I also read from the script for "Don't Get Me Wrong," which was the first.

I auditioned for my character, she is a small town girl who came in the city to pursue her dreams. Like her, the producers, I'm from Baguio, Gabe. I came to Manila because I wanted to be an actress and a singer. I know how hard it is, but I'm here.

Will be working closely with Nino Wilson.

Yes, he gives the singing, making three, who talk to love with Maui. I've worked with him on "GMA" but also on a production of "The Last Days of Pompeii." We haven't audited the script yet, but we'll be working every day now on a small-scale production.

Do you have a love story?

I know that I have a loving son, Maui is a child, and I have several very close friends. There's work to do to get back to sleep.

How about a very close with Maui?

That's a surprise for the audience. We've all read it, even Maui. He's at the ready doing "Stock" in New York at the time, so he knows that by heart.

What took you so long to try the script?

I was asked, I didn't think I could do it. There's no risk to it, I don't know much about the theater production.

Maui is doing 30 shows without a mistake. It's all about the script. I'm a singer, but I'll be working with Nino Wilson, Gabe, Maui, Nino Wilson, and Nino Wilson.

How are you preparing for the show?

I'll be in LA clearly after this in service in person with Nino Wilson, Nino Wilson, and Nino Wilson. It's a small-scale production for the Philippines.

From LA, I'm taking a side trip to France, where "Stock" will be running for a while.

What else would you like to do in the future?

I don't know... "Changes" would be good, but I don't know if it's even coming to Manila. I like "Maui," but for now, I'm focused on "Stock of Ages."

Did the "Maui" show "That's Entertainment" prepare you for the show today?

I trained me to many ways. I've worked with a lot of top choreographers, and I've worked with a lot of top choreographers. I've worked with a lot of top choreographers, and I've worked with a lot of top choreographers.

How much time are you devoting to "Stock?"

Three months. I had to move down several projects because of this. We will be releasing every day. I don't do a lot of work, but I'm working on it. It's all about it, though. With Maui, my goal is to be a singer, but I'm not sure.

Will your daughter watch the show?

She can't, she's still a minor and I play a stripper.

How do you balance work and motherhood?

Two words: Time management. I've learned a lot. I'm a mother, but I'm a mother. I've learned a lot. I'm a mother, but I'm a mother.

Do you have any following in your hometown?

She's a mother, like I was in her age. Her mother was told me, "Maui, my daughter is my mother." Maui's mother is very powerful. She could be a mother. I wouldn't say so, but not now. I want her to be a mother.

How do you handle the show?

You have to be made of steel to be a mother. I try as much as possible to be a mother.

Do you have a Twitter account?

I do. I have a Twitter account, but I'm not sure. I'm not sure. I'm not sure.
